Group 5: Penpals

Timothy Moon

Age: 18
Work: Student
Family: two siblings & parents
Location: Arlington, TX
Character: The improviser

Personality

Hard-working Disorganized Social Improvisational

Goals

- Wants to be independent and self-sustaining with a part-time job and living away from family
- Hopes to change his on-the-fly mindset when it comes to making big decisions
- Wants to have a smooth first year in college

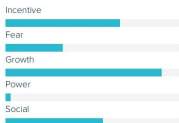

Frustrations

- Wants to avoid starting the school year disorganized like he was in high school
- Not usually one to make plans for his long-term goals
- Not sure how to utilize a journal for his more important goals during his first year of college

Bio

Timothy was born in the US right after his parents moved from South Korea. He has lived with his family his whole life, and now that it is almost the end of his senior year of high school, he is thinking of moving out for his first year in college. He knows that he can't just wing it when it comes to looking for housing and getting a part-time job to fund his studies, so he is looking for a way to get more organized in life. He is too used to doing things as they come, like he did in high school, so he is trying to break out of that habit by recording his ideas and thoughts to get him comfortably through his first year in college.

User Persona

"I've got some time on my hands, so I'll probably get another chapter down by tonight."

Name: Anna Jasinski
Age: 34
Work: Manager at a Department Store
Family: Married, one kid
Location: Milwaukee, WI
Character: The Creative Type

Personality

Big picture thinker Artistic Introvert
Optimist

Goals

- Wants to track progress on writing her book.
- Wants to record her child growing up.
- Feels that she should be more organized and focused on the long-term.

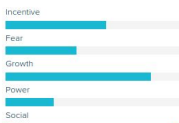

Frustrations

- Wants to avoid unnecessary technical frustrations - the solution should be simple and just work.
- Wants to keep her journal private.
- Will get bored of a bland user interface - she's a big-picture person and will move on if the solution isn't visually interesting.

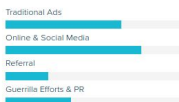

Bio

Anna Jasinski (nee Schroeder) was born in Erie, PA and moved to Milwaukee before entering high school. She has worked in retail since graduating and has since moved into a management role. She has a husband and one child. She spends much of her time on artistic endeavours, like drawing and painting, and is currently writing a fiction book set in a world where nature is reclaiming towns and cities. She likes to think of herself as a very social person, but she is most often found with her family or working on her art by herself. She has a smartphone, but uses her tablet PC most of the time. She likes things to work on both devices, and be simple, colourful, and have tasteful design.

Statement of Purpose

We strive to overcome the challenges of accomplishing goals efficiently by providing an intuitive and accessible TODO list application that helps people build the habit of planning, executing, and reviewing their progress while maintaining privacy.

Overall Idea

- Simplistic design, easy to use, goal is to not overwhelm the user with features but rather give them something they will actually use
- Four different journal types, daily log, future log, and task list/reminder/recap list (monthly log), custom log
- Main features will be adding, deleting, editing entries
- Filter bar to filter by label/type, scroll bar on the right to scroll through entries
- Give user some freedom to personalize their entries, but not change overall style of the journal
- Have a tutorial to help people who are learning to keep a BuJo for the first time

Risks

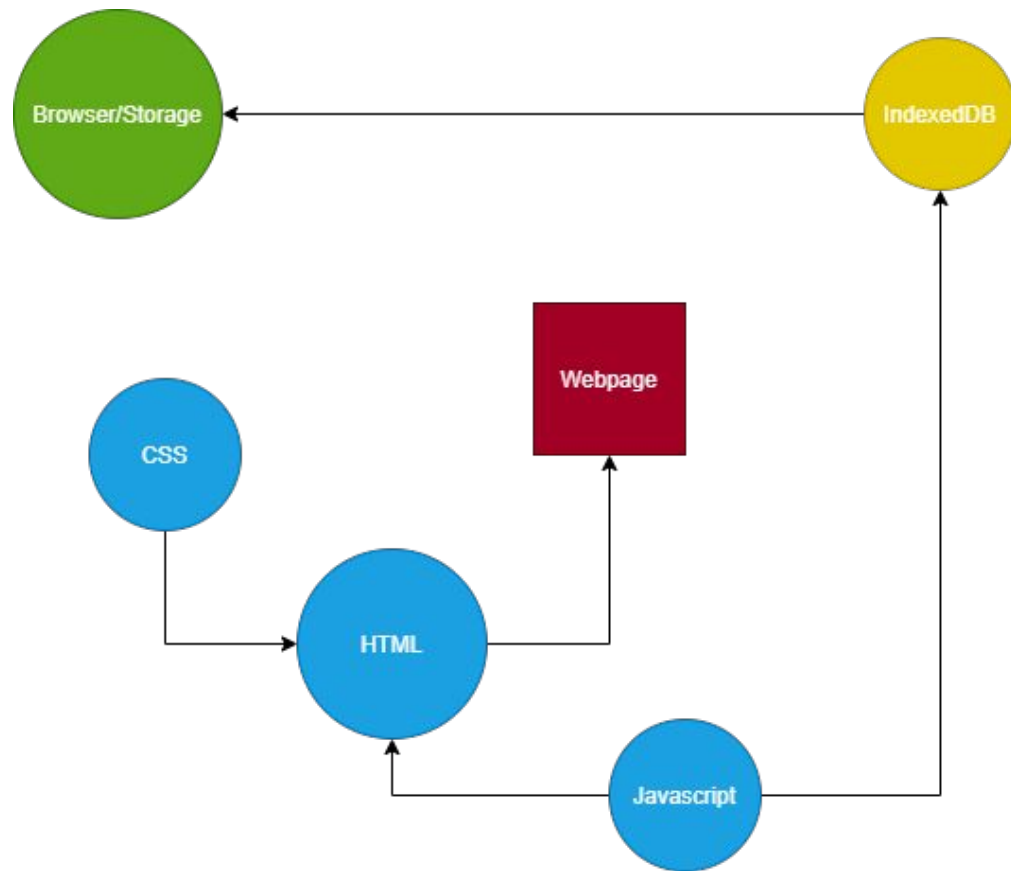

- Not enough time to implement all features – Focus on the bare minimum, make the bullet journal functional with the absolute basics
- Overengineering – Don't make it too overwhelming for the user, make everything clear and cut out for how to operate it
- Doesn't appeal to our user group – Make it have a universally liked design, make sure the features fit standard users and use cases
- Lack of Implementation Knowledge – Use client-side APIs that are straightforward and simplistic (IndexedDB, Web Storage)

Rabbit Holes

- Too detailed of a tutorial – educate new journallers but don't create the next big bullet journal class
- Filter options. Yes, there should be some amount of ability to filter, but we don't need to create a website that people can virtually reprogram with customization features
- Storage. We can't spend too long trying to find the perfect data storage solution that has the best privacy features and enables cross platform access to the BuJo etc.
- Text editor. We could spend too much time trying to accomodate different font customizations. Make it simple, a countable number of customization scenarios that all work well is better than bugs and delays from trying to maintain too many of these
